REDUCES THE TAX LEVY FOR COUNTY

County Council Fixes it at Twenty-three Cents, Three Cents Lower Than Last Year.

APPROPRIATION IS $58,301.00

Interesting Item Shows That "Only" $4,000 Has Been Paid Out For Field Examiners.

The county council, which adjourned late yesterday evening after a two days' session, fixed the county tax levy at twenty-three cents on the hundred dollars, just three cents lower than it was last year. The levy was twenty-six cents on the hundred last year. They reduced the interest to be paid on the court house bonds from three and sixty-five hundredths cents to three and fifteen hundredths cents, the eleven cents to be paid the same as last year on the principal of the court house bonds. The total appropriation of the county council this year was $58,301.00.

There is an interesting item in the fact that four thousand dollars of the money to pay field examiners who have labored here in an attempt to find former township and county officials short. The total of the appropriation as figured up on the balance sheet in the auditor's office is $57,801.00. Below that in ink is written one item for $500.00 and another for $3,000.00. When asked what the additional appropriation was for the auditor replied that it was two items which the county council had overlooked. The five hundred was for legal advertising and the three thousand was to pay field examiners. The deputy auditor added that already a thousand dollars had been paid out for the sweat from the brow of the field examiners. In other words the taxpayers of Rush county have paid four thousand dollars for examiners to come in here and charge that one of her citizens is short over eight thousand dollars, even it has never been proven.

In order to make the appropriation for the coming year and fix the tax levy, the county council must estimate the expenses of the county for the coming year. All the county officials make estimates of their expenses for coming year and then the total amount of taxable property in the county is learned. In this manner the tax levy is fixed so that a sufficient amount of revenue will come in to pay the expenses to be incurred.

POLICE CALLED TO QUIET A ROW

They Carry the Dove of Peace to Two Homes in West Ninth Street.

NO ARRESTS HAVE BEEN MADE

The police were called to the home of William Dishinger, at 636 West Ninth street, late this afternoon to quiet a row between the Dishinger and Carue families. The Dishingers have a tomato patch and they told the police that the children of Mr. and Mrs. Carue had been getting in their tomato patch. As a result a row was started, which was something similar to a Kentucky feud. For that reason the police were called to carry the dove of peace to the neighborhood. No arrests were made.

PASTOR MAKES ADDRESS

The Rev. A. W. Jamieson Talks in the Indianapolis Convention.

The Rev. A. W. Jamieson, pastor of the United Presbyterian church, delivered an address at the Christian Union convention of the United Presbyterian church in Indianapolis last evening. A number of local people have been in attendance at the annual session since it convened yesterday morning. Clara Applegate is the delegate from the local organization.

SENSATIONAL IS PACER'S VICTORY

Clell Maple Wins 2:17 Pace With Princess Adra at Dayton in Exciting Manner.

LAST HEAT WAS A "THRILLER"

According to the Dayton News, Clell Maple and his little bay mare, Princess Adra, were the heroic winners of the 2:17 pace at the races there on Tuesday. The mare showed remarkable speed and won the second heat of the race in 2:14 1/4 with apparent ease and without hardly extending herself. She finished in sixth position in the first heat and was not even counted a contender until after the second heat. She had more trouble in taking the third, Opal Right, a brown mare, coming from the back part of the field passing several consistent performers and finishing a close second to the Princess, who won in 2:14 1/4. The fourth heat took more of an effort from the local driver, who with his entry, raced the entire length of the track, neck and neck, with the only other real contestant, Opal Right. The last heat is said by the Dayton papers to be the prettiest exhibition of horse racing that was ever seen in the Ohio city. The two horses raced the mile side by side, each straining to gain over the other one. They finished, Princess Adra just a nose ahead of Opal Right and the field several lengths behind. The brown mare has been trained over at Riverside park for the past two seasons and is being raced this season by Clell Maple.

INFANT DIED LAST NIGHT

Five-Months-Old Son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Krammes Succumbs to Cholera Infantum.

FUNERAL SERVICES TOMORROW

Arthur D. rammes, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Krammes, died at the home of its parents in Walker township at one o'clock this morning from cholera infantum. The infant had been very ill for the last few weeks and a noble fight was made by the attending physicians to save the life of the child. The baby was five months of age, having been born April the seventh of this year. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at ten o'clock. Burial of the body will be made in Hurst cemetery.

LEFT HER BABY.

Leaving her three-weeks-old child "just for a half hour" with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Winters in Connersville, a young woman disappeared shortly after and has not reclaimed the babe. Mr. and Mrs. Winters are trying to locate the mother.

"IT WAS GREAT" SAY H. S. ALUMNI

One Hundred and Twelve Met, Feasted and Were Toasted at the Christian Church.

BUSINESS MEETING IS HELD

Many From Out of the City Were Present—Next Meeting in June 1912.

"It was great" was an expression from one of the class of "75" after the curtain had been rung down on the banquet of the alumni of the Rushville high school last night, which was held in the basement of the Main Street Christian church. The one hundred and twelve who gathered to join in the festivities ranged from the "yelling" class of "93" on down to the "Silver Gray" and from them on back to the youngest alumni.

During the short informal reception which was held before the feast was served to those who were once worshippers at the local shrine of Minerva, it was quite amusing and interesting to observe classmates gather together and indulge in pleasant recollections and memories. One member of the class of "03" was heard to say, "How I used to detest high school and everything connected with it. I even went so far as to say that I would never enter the building again as long as I lived, but now I find that my four years in high school were the most pleasant of my life."

At seven o'clock the master of ceremonies, Dr. J. C. Sexton, led the way to the banquet room, where a banquet was served, which was one of plenty, excellence and deliciousness. The buying, the cooking and the serving was all done by members of the Ladies Aid Society of the Main Street Christian church, and praise is due unto them for all of its excellent qualities. Between the dinner and the salad course, to express the words of one of the class of "94," the raving grads of "93" cut loose their yell. There was only one other class that had planned to do this and it was the class of "78" and they had to give up the idea, because the mind failed to remember or recollect it.

Dr. J. C. Sexton arose after the last course had been served and with a few remarks full of subtle wit he introduced Ward Hackleman, "09" who spoke very briefly, but with quite a little humor on the subject, "The College Freshman."

Judge Will M. Sparks was the next speaker on the list and in a lengthy, well prepared toast he told what the "Legal Rights of an 'In-law'" were. He made it clear that a son-in-law had legal rights, but these rights were valueless because that he could never have them enforced without putting himself in a position of physical danger. "It is the mother-in-law that has the rights and sees that they are enforced," said Judge Sparks. His toast was full of underlying sarcasm and wit. He closed with a plea for more love between "in-law" and "in-law" saying that love would be reciprocated to the same extent that it was given.

Mrs. Lincoln Gary spoke with the subtlest humor possible on "Psychological Observations." She pleaded for a greater love for the high school and for its alumni to show a greater interest in it. She alluded very particularly to her class, which was the class of 1893, narrating many instances of psychological observations. Mrs. Gary praised the work that the late Samuel Abercrombie accomplished in the Rushville schools, saying that she believed him to be the pioneer of the modern movement in the Rushville schools—that of a kindlier feeling between student and instructor.

THE DEADLOCK IS BROUGHT TO END

Dennis O'Neil is Nominated for Prosecutor on 526th Ballot at Democratic Judicial Convention.

COMES AS A BIG SURPRISE

Selection of Local Man Made Possible by Swinging of Cheney's Votes in His Favor.

Breaking all marathon records for long distance conventions, the Democrats of the 16th judicial district, composed of this and Shelby county, voted until the 526th ballot in Shelbyville last evening, before they nominated Dennis O'Neil of this city as a candidate for prosecuting attorney of the district. It is said that the greatest number of ballots ever taken in any convention in the State, were taken yesterday. The delegates threatened to adjourn until this morning on several occasions, but only once was a motion to adjourn voted on. The vote was seventeen to seventeen and the motion was lost and the delegates battled away until the result was finally reached. The nomination of O'Neil was made possible by the swinging of the seventeen Cheney votes in his favor, when the present incumbent withdrew.

The selection of the convention came as a big surprise to Dennis O'Neil, who was hardly considered in the race. It was conceded when he first made his announcement for the race, that he had some chance, but as the time for the convention approached, his hopes went a' glimmering. Friends of O'Neil from here say that he was so greatly surprised that he could not utter a word when the result was announced.

He had never been considered seriously in the race, nor did he have any great hope himself, that he would land the nomination. Early in the afternoon he had retired from active campaigning and ballot after ballot was reported in which his name found no mention. When the result of the final ballot was announced he half rose to his feet and then sank into his seat again. As the results were called he arose to his feet, and, as some of the delegates expressed it, appeared as one who had been struck by lightning. He was finally able to collect his thoughts and to thank the convention for the signal, but sudden, honor conferred. Mr. O'Neil declared openly he had given up hours before any hope of securing the nomination.

Politicians all over the district were of the opinion that John C. Cheney, who is the present prosecutor, should have the nomination again as he has served only one term. It has been the custom to give the office to a candidate for two terms. Cheney held out long, for he thought that the nomination might be had even though the delegates refused to come to him, after five hundred ballots. He had seventeen votes at his command all during the long session, the seventeen delegates which he was allowed to choose after the primary had been held there. They stuck to their man and refused to vote for any other until he withdrew in favor of O'Neil. He was within one vote of the nomination, as only eighteen were necessary for a choice, all during the five hundred and twenty-five ballots, but he was not able to pull one more delegate over in his favor.

The other four delegates from Shelby county stood steadfastly for James Brown, a young attorney of Shelby county, who formerly lived in this county. At different times two of the Brown delegates voted for Megee, but never would they cast a vote for Cheney and nominate him. They absolutely refused to confer the honor on the present incumbent, although they held the whole convention in their grasp.

John D. Megee, who was the "dark horse" of the convention, proved to be Cheney's strongest opponent after he entered the convention. His name was introduced at the 151st ballot, and the thirteen delegates from this county stood by him until the end. The manner in which the Rush county delegates "slashed" O'Neil has been the source of much comment among local politicians today. O'Neil was endorsed by the Democrats of the county in convention here and it was supposed that they would cast their votes for him until the end. But instead they switched for Megee just as soon as his name was mentioned.

The action of Cheney in throwing his strength to O'Neil has also been the cause of much comment among politicians, both Democrat and Republican, here today. It was generally conceded that the candidacy of O'Neil was not looked upon in a very favorable light by Cheney and his action is hardly explainable.

TO RESUME WITH CARNIVAL TONIGHT

Catholic Young Men Hope to be Back on the Job Again, Weather Permitting.

WAS NOT HELD LAST NIGHT

With weather conditions permitting the Catholic young men's carnival which is being held in the park back of the church in Perkins street, will be resumed tonight. It was necessary to postpone the event last night on account of the rain. Rain has threatened all during the time which was set for the annual event and has interfered considerably with the program. It is planned to hold the carnival tonight if it is at all possible. On account of the postponement last night, the event will be continued until Saturday, although it was first intended to bring it to a close on Friday night. The promoters are hoping for a good crowd. The "Hall of Laughter," where three local amateurs are putting on a vaudeville show, will present a complete new program tonight.

COMPROMISE SUIT THIS AFTERNOON

Glen Falls, Camden, and Dubuque Fire Insurance Companies Settle With Davis Bros.

THEY EXPRESS SATISFACTION

Davis Bros., the liverymen, who a few days ago filed suit against the Glen Falls, the Camden and Dubuque Fire Insurance companies, compromised with them this afternoon. The suit was filed because they refused to pay the loss on their barn which, burned several weeks ago. Today the three companies sent men here as their representatives, who this afternoon came to a compromise with the plaintiffs. R. S. Davis, when asked if he was satisfied with the compromise said that he was to the extent that he felt he would do better by it than to go to court with the ease. Carl Nipp is the local agent for all three of the companies.

Carborundum, the product of the electric furnace, is the hardest substance known.

The world's product of gold since the discovery of America is estimated at $130,000,000,000.

ELECT ST. PAUL MAN PRESIDENT

Harry Ballard is Named as New Head of Bell Smokeless Powder Co. at Reorganization Meeting.

NEW TREASURER IS CHOSEN

No Word Has Been Received From Dr. Bell Who so Mysteriously Disappeared Sunday.

The Bell Powder company has been reorganized and with it new men have been elected to take charge of the reins. At a meeting of the stockholders last evening Harry Ballard of St. Paul was named as president to succeed Dr. John Bell, who absconded and W. V. Dorsey of Shelbyville, a wealthy member of the company, was named as treasurer.

The promoters of the company state that they are now in better condition than when Mr. Bell was with them. Considerable stock has been subscribed for and the present plans of the company are to proceed and erect their factory building in Shelbyville.

Although no one appears to doubt but that the powder is a good thing the stock was disappearing rather slowly. The reason for this, it is said, was to be found in the manner of the organization of the company. One business man of Shelbyville is quoted as saying that he had decided to invest several thousand dollars in the plant when he was advised against it by his lawyers who had discovered several unhealthy clauses in the constitution and by-laws.

One of the most obnoxious provisions is said to be one which gives the officers the right to vote themselves any salary that they considered their services to be worth. This clause alone was enough to frighten the investor, as it virtually bestowed on the officers power to vote all the profits to themselves, instead of declaring dividends. Another feature not calculated to win the confidence of the investor is the fact, it is said, that the concern is incorporated under the laws of the State of Arizona.

No one has heard from Dr. Bell since he sped from his old home town in his auto and many believe that he will never return. They are confirmed in this opinion by the fact that he took with him his medicine case and licenses and diploma which entitles him to practice medicine. Although his friends deny it, rumor is persistent in repeating the story that the doctor was subject to periodical sprees and that when he left, he was on one of them.

THROW TO CONNERSVILLE

About 500 Tickets Sold Over I. & C. Traction Line.

Up until noon today about five hundred tickets over the I. & C. traction line had been sold to Connersville. In practically all of the instances the crowds went for the Fayette county free fair which is being held there this week. Special traction cars were run between here and Connersville all morning and even with that all of the cars were crowded. It is estimated that one thousand people from Rush county attended the fair there today as nearly twice as many boarded the cars between here and Glenwood and at Glenwood as got on here.

THE WEATHER.

Unsettled and much colder tonight with showers in east and south portion Friday. Fair and colder in south portion.

Strong Healthy Women

If a woman is strong and healthy in a womanly way, motherhood means to her but little suffering. The trouble lies in the fact that the many women suffer from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organism and are unfitted for motherhood. This can be remedied.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

Cures the weaknesses and disorders of women. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in motherhood, making them healthy, strong, vigorous, virile and elastic.

"Favorite Prescription" banishes the indispositions of the period of expectancy and makes baby's advent easy and almost painless. It quickens and vitalizes the feminine organs, and insures a healthy and robust baby. Thousands of women have testified to its marvelous merits.

It Makes Weak Women Strong. It Makes Sick Women Well. Honest druggists do not offer substitutes, and urge them upon you as "just as good." Accept no secret nostrum in place of this non-secret remedy. It contains not a drop of alcohol and not a grain of habit-forming or injurious drugs. Is a pure glyceric extract of healing, native American roots.

Although no one is wearing them, the new fall and winter hats are being shown. The smartest hats are like overgrown drum major hats. Some of them are developed in black velvet while others are in browns and the various shades of red. The black hats are the most imposing looking and would overtop almost any woman of slender build. One of the newest hats that is being feathered this fall is the "Rob Roy," presumably of Scottish origin. There is a crown of plaid, softly draped, and a broad band of velvet of plain color, fitting rather closely to the head. At one side are croquetishly placed two richly colored quills. The quills and velvet are of scarlet and the plaid shows a variety of colors artistically combined. In these Rob Roy hats one may have the satisfaction of using the plaid to which one is entitled if of Scottish parentage or descent.

Willow plumes are being imitated in some material that so closely resembles real feathers as to deceive any one who does not make a close examination. These are the first good imitation of plumes that have been seen and are attracting considerable attention. They are shown in many pretty colors in fact their adaptability to coloring is one of their best recommendation. The white and black plumes are quite effective. As they are likely to withstand rain and snow they are sure to be in demand.

constipation permanently by proper personal co-operation with the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, when required. The forming of regular habits is most important and while endeavoring to form them the assistance of Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is most valuable, as it is the only laxative which acts without disturbing the natural functions and without debilitating and it is the one laxative which leaves the internal organs in a naturally healthy condition, thereby really aiding one in that way. To get its beneficial effects, buy the genuine manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, and for sale by all leading druggists. Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is never classed by the well-informed with medicines which make extravagant and unfounded claims to cure habitual constipation without personal co-operation.

AND NOW HIS MONEY IS GONE

An Iowa Farmer Visiting in Indiana Encounters a Gang of "Sharks" at Fort Wayne, Who Got What Money He Had and Sent Him Skurrying Gladly Home for More, Which They Also Appropriated.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Sept. 8.—After having lost $75 in a pool game with "sharks" in this city, Russell A. Boggs, a farmer, living near Grinnell, Ia., rushed frantically across several states to his home, obtained $450 more, hurried back to Fort Wayne and lost the money on the same proposition before he concluded that he had been swindled. The job is believed to have been the work of a gang of professional sharps that came to this city two weeks ago. The police department believes that three men now in jail, who say they are from Toledo, and give the names of Charles Rousel, Ed Smith and Charles Bernard, may know something of the alleged swindle.

Boggs says he came from his Iowa home to visit friends at Huntington, and made a trip to Fort Wayne to see this city. Here he fell in with an engaging young stranger, who told Boggs that he was the owner of the Anthony hotel and a number of other large buildings here. A little later Boggs was invited into a pool game. He won several dollars, and was so elated that he kept on playing with his newly-found friend and two other men until they told him he had won $400. The loser declined to pay, however, until assured that Boggs had funds sufficient to cover the losses had luck run against him. The Iowa man had only $75 in cash, but this he deposited with his "friend" and hurried back to Iowa for more cash.

Boggs returned from Iowa and deposited his new roll with his "friend." The loser then admitted that he was out of funds. Boggs accompanied him to a telegraph office, where he sent a telegram asking for money. When Boggs and the stranger returned the money and the men had disappeared. Boggs's total loss is $520.

SETTLED AT LAST

Newfoundland Fisheries Dispute Will Cease From Troubling.

The Hague, Sept. 8.—The international court of arbitration has rendered its decision in the Newfoundland fisheries case submitted by the governments of the United States and Great Britain. Neither country wins a clear-cut award, but the Americans claim a substantial victory.

For close on to one hundred years the Newfoundland fisheries dispute has been a source of irritation to the governments of England and the United States. Treaties have been unsatisfactory and commissions have failed to adjust annoying, sometimes dangerous, complications. The United States, although losing on the three-mile limit question, the most important contention, secured valuable privileges. American fishermen will not have to pay lighthouse duties or enter at custom houses, and they will be allowed to man their vessels with aliens.

DEADLY SHOCK

Two Men at Columbus, Ind., Become Victims of Live Wire.

Columbus, Ind., Sept. 8.—Harry O. Schwab, aged thirty, and John Hoffmeyer, aged sixty, were instantly killed by a live wire at the foot of Fifth street.

Schwab was a lineman employed by the Pennsylvania line, and Hoffmeyer a watchman at the crossing there. Schwab was engaged in stringing a copper telegraph wire across two insulated leads from the plant of the lighting company when the wire he was stringing sawed through the insulation. This gave the man 2,300 volts of electricity. He fell dead instantly.

Hoffmeyer is believed to have grasped the wire in an effort to pull it away from Schwab. His body was found on the railroad track about forty feet from that of the lineman.

JONATHAN'S EMANCIPATION.

His Sister-in-law Helped, and the Widow Helped Too.

By HELEN T. QUIGG.

Jemisha Amanda Dibbs was his brother's wife and had asserted and maintained her authority over both his brother and himself ever since she had become a member of the family. All morning he had been wondering uneasily for whom the storm was brewing, and, as her husband had got out of the house unscathed, he feared that he was in for it. He was standing by the window now, looking out aimlessly, wishing that it were over and yet not daring to avoid it, and when she entered the room in which he stood, clearing her throat emphatically, he turned toward her with a shiver of apprehension. He was a stout man, with an air of mild indecision about him; about his soft, sandy hair; about his broad, rounded shoulders; about even his easy, grayish lace sack coat.

"It's pretty capers you've been cutting around that Jennet widow," she said.

Jonathan looked, it must be confessed, not only surprised, but worried. "I hope I have not made any trouble for her," he said doubtfully.

"It's absurd, positively absurd," continued Mrs. Dibbs, dropping into a chair. "The idea of marrying that silly little fool, without a cent to her name, and at your age too!"

Her brother-in-law had not really had an intention of any sort in regard to the widow. Indeed, he had never had a decided intention in regard to anything since Mrs. Dibbs had taken possession. Nevertheless he felt mildly indignant enough to make a faint retort. "I am sure, Amanda, you were not much younger when you married Lucien," said he in his quiet way.

The curling pins in which Mrs. Dibbs' front locks were confined bristled with anger.

"I should like to know," she began in a deep, ominous voice, "what business that is of yours. And you know well enough, Jonathan Dibbs, that when I married your brother I was not nearly as old as you are. But anyhow"—her tone had become loud and resonant—"anyhow I never was such a childish simpleton as you are and always will be to the end of your days—to be fooled and taken in by a designing, no account little creature that's been fishing for a husband ever since that poor invalid man of hers died, worried to death by her flightiness, I'll warrant! That's a pretty thing to happen to a man like you, isn't it?" Here Mrs. Dibbs choked, and Jonathan took advantage of the momentary check in her assault to inquire, "Who told you I was going to marry her, Amanda?"

"Who told me?" she burst out. "Who told me? Why, hasn't the little fool herself been telling it all around the town that you wanted to marry her and," in a high, sniping falsetto, "that she didn't know whether she ought to think of it or not, but that Mr. Dibbs was such a nice man and such a friend of her poor, dear Arthur and she would hate to disappoint him? Oh, the idiot!"

Jonathan Dibbs looked thoughtful. Suddenly the figure of the widow in question appeared before his mind's eye. It was a neat, retiring little figure, with soft brown hair and a small face, slightly sunburned, but sweet and tender, and with an individuality of its own that only a patient, conscientious life could have given it. He compared it with the large, obtrusive face and figure of his sister-in-law, and gradually he began to smile. A sudden sense of relief came to him in the contemplation of the little widow and a strange, unusual sense of pleasure, the joy of the awakening of a desire and a will in him which he had never before suspected.

"I guess the little woman really did think I wanted to marry her," he remarked pleasantly.

"Of course she did," replied Mrs. Dibbs smartly in her loud, scornful voice, not noting the change in her victim's attitude toward her. "Of course she did, the conceited little piece!"

"I wouldn't be absurd if I were you, Amanda," said Jonathan Dibbs. "It doesn't suit your size." He had skopen very slowly and smoothly, but he gasped a little now that he had achieved this crude but radical assertion of his freedom. He had reason to gasp.

"What! You dare! You dare!" She stood before him glaring, and his unaccountable inclination to laugh at her frightened him more than her passion did. "You dare!" she shouted. "You—you brute! I knew that little fool had you in her clutches. I knew it. Did she tell you to say that? I might have known she would bring you to forget all honor and truth and duty. Don't you dare bring her to this house, you brute! Size, indeed! She isn't the size of a fence rail. That's your idea of beauty, I suppose. Just you dare to marry her!"

Jonathan Dibbs, though his heart quaked within him, walked boldly past her to the door. There he turned. "I may send you an invitation to the wedding if she cares to have you come. Anyhow I'll send you an announcement. Say goodbye to Lucien for me, will you? Poor Lucien!" He grinned happily into her blazing eyes and, shutting the door with a bang as he went through the house, strode out into the street.

Mrs. Dibbs sank into a chair and after repeating several times the speeches with which she had benefited her brother-in-law indulged in a fit of hysterics to the vast amusement of the poll parrot and the kitchen maid.

Jonathan, however, though he was experiencing a faint, rather contemptuous pity for his brother, strode along gayly, as he had never done before.

"What a fool—what a fool I used to be!" he thought. "What a fool a man is anyhow to let a woman ride over him at her own sweet will! And to think that I stood it for twelve years and never thought of breaking away! It must have been the widow, bless her heart!" Here he smiled to himself sentimentally and wondered how she would take it, the "it" in question being the plan he was going to propose to her.

He flung the gate of the little yard wide open and walked quickly along the path by the side of the house. The widow was on the porch ironing out some lace when he approached, and she looked up with face aglow when she perceived who it was. He lost no time in announcing the object of his visit. He took her hands in his and looked into her wide eyes. "Lillian," he said, "there is a train that leaves here for the city in forty minutes. I want you to get ready and go with me on that train if you can do it in so short a time."

The widow flushed and paled.

"What for?" she asked.

"Why, to get married, of course," he said, surprised that she did not know. There was a silence, and when his arm stole around her, "Hurry up!" in a low voice and a tone whose anxiety did not refer to catching the train.

"I didn't know," she began slowly—"I didn't know we meant to get married. But if you wish it very much—oh, dear!" She hid her face suddenly in his coat.

"Now go," he said after a little, "because we want to catch that train. And wear that blue thing you have with the white spots—you know."

She smiled tremulously. No one had ever noticed her clothes before, and she had always half worshipped him anyhow, and now she was very much confused and very happy.

They managed to catch the train by means of a little running for it, and they rode gayly and breathlessly away from home toward the city. She stole a look at his beaming face and after awhile gathered courage to speak.

"Jonathan," she said softly, "how did I—what did I do to make you think of this? I never hoped!"

He laughed. "Call me Jack," he said with a blush. They used to call him Jack when he was a big, slow, good natured schoolboy. "And what you did was to make a man of me, that is all," he continued. Then after awhile he laughed again. "We have my sister-in-law to thank for some of this," he remarked slowly, "but," he turned to her and spoke with sudden emphasis—"but you must not let it grieve you if we never have a chance to express our gratitude."

A "Sure Thing" Poet.

Poets as a rule are not good business men, but an exception is one of a little group of young writers and artists who dine every evening together and talk shop. The poet very often reads the verses he has composed, and sometimes the comments are not exactly flattering. "That's rotten!" exclaimed an artist on hearing one of these effusions recently.

"I'll bet you $5 I can sell it to a magazine," replied the poet.

The wager was made, and the artist lost. Since that the poet has made several similar bets with his scoffing friends and has won them all. He was chuckling over it to an outsider the other day. "You must have wonderful confidence in the merit of your work," said the rank outsider.

"Confidence nothing," laughed the poet. "I couldn't lose. I never read a poem to those fellows until I have first sold it."—New York Sun.

Caring For Eyeglasses.

Most people seem to think that glasses will stand any sort of treatment, and yank and pull at them until they go to the repair shop with alarming frequency. Glasses should never be taken off with one hand; an optician advises that they be carefully grasped by the rims of the lenses on both sides and removed by pushing upward. Pulling at one side of spectacles bends the frame; with nose-glasses it loosens the screw, and the lens shakes continually. Sometimes this happens in spite of care, and then it is well to purchase one of the tiny screwdrivers used by opticians and tighten them whenever necessary. Clean your glasses with some soft material—a common piece of tissue paper is better than any medium yet invented—and occasionally give them a bath in warm water into which a little ammonia has been dropped.

Elizabeth's Reform.

Queen Elizabeth in the last year or her reign was much concerned as to the expenses of the royal household. According to a document in the public record office, she ordered a comparison to be made between the expenditure incurred in the third and the forty-third years of her reign, when "yt was found that in bread, beere, wyne, wood, coles, wax lights, torches, talow lights and meetes and other allowances of incidents, necessities, carriages and wages £12,000 ($60,000) per annum at least more was spent and no sufficient warrant for the increase. The queen's majesty being informed of this difference said: 'I will not suffer this dishonorable spoile and increase that no prince ever before me did. But my speedie order for reformation shall satisfy my loving subjects, for I will end as I beganne with my subjects' love.'"

JOSH JASSAMINE'S INVENTION

Machine Thrashed, Stacked, Baked Dough and Enticed Honey.

"These machines they're using in the west to cut and thrash wheat may be some pumpkins," began the man from the "show me" state, "but there isn't one of them that could stand deuce high to that old 'hired help' combination affair Josh Jassamine invented to use in his wheatfield on the back forty. Josh started out with a miscellaneous outfit of machinery from binders, thrashers and flour mills to kitchen cabinets and cook stoves, and when he finished he had a contraption the like of which mortal never saw before. Hitched to a span of good mules and with plenty of wood in the fire-box, that machine could do everything but think.

"Turned loose in a field, that affair cut the wheat, thrashed it and stacked the straw. And that wasn't a beginning. The wheat was run through a system of rollers and came out mighty fine flour. Then the mixing machine got busy, and the rest of the dope necessary for good biscuits was automatically stirred with the flour. By that time the mess was ready for the cook stove attachment, and before Josh had made one round of the field he would reach back of the seat and get a fresh hundred per cent proof bottled in bond biscuit, all ready for the eating.

"And just to show what fate will do to aid a deserving man a swarm of bees settled in the flour bin of that machine one night, and the next day, after he had worked a few minutes, Josh was surprised to find each biscuit was spread with honey as nice as if he had done it at the dinner table with a silver plated knife. You see—

TO MAKE SHOW INTERNATIONAL

Plan to Take in Larger Scope at Next Corn Exposition to be Held in 1912.

TO TAKE NO ACTION AS YET

Fourth Annual Event Will be Held at Ohio State Exposition Grounds This Year.

"Columbus, Ohio, Sept. 8, 1910, (special)—Madison Square Garden for the next, or the 1912 National Corn Exposition.

To make it an International, instead of a National Exposition, and to interest, to the extent of exhibiting, every country on the globe.

Since the coming fourth annual National Corn Exposition to be held in the group of seven massive exhibit halls at the Ohio State Exposition grounds has grown to such proportions that every nook and corner in the several buildings will be filled, it has been suggested by a number of leading agriculturists and prominent government officials that the next show be made international, and that it be held in the famous Madison Square Garden in New York City.

No action will be taken on the proposition by the National Corn association until well after the business of the coming big Corn Show is settled, although much pressure is being brought to bear for an early decision, owing to the interest that is being taken by the United States government and the departments of agriculture of other countries.

While it is estimated that the Madison Square Garden, as a location for the show proper would be little, if any better than the excellent exhibit halls on the Ohio State Exposition grounds at Columbus, Ohio, the fact that it would be held in such a convenient location and in such a popular place of amusement, would be an inducement, which, it is claimed by those interested, would bring exhibits and delegations from every country, and the exposition would be the greatest world-venture in the interest of the betterment of agriculture.

"The National Agricultural Exposition" is the new name proposed for the National Corn Exposition, owing to the fact that the intents and purposes of the event have so far outgrown the original purposes of the National Corn Association. When the first show was held in Chicago in 1907, only corn was shown. At the next two annual shows which were held in Omaha, it was found necessary to enlarge the scope by adding classification for all grains and grasses. Interest has become so great, because of the extension and broadening out, that not alone all states, but the government departments of agriculture have become as directly interested and benefited that the proposed change of name, in all probability, must come within the immediate future and before the 1912 exposition is held.

Already the plans for the fourth annual show which opens in Columbus, Ohio, January 30, to continue through February 11, have reached such proportions as to insure the greatest, by far, of any National Agricultural exposition that has ever been held, and the present indications are that all exhibitors now clamoring for space cannot be accommodated.

Regardless of the fact that already more than 30 states have arranged for exhibits from their respective agricultural colleges and experiment stations, with the best of their products representing each State, there will be at least several more states to enter, correspondence from the additional states being of the most favorable tone and each State college expressing the deepest interest.

The fact that there will be so many national and state meetings of the greatest possible importance to the agriculturist, to be held at the same time and place as the National Corn Exposition, has caused some of the leading men of the country to suggest Madison Square Garden for the next show, and it is more than likely that such pressure will be brought to bear upon the officials of the National Corn association that the proposition will receive most careful consideration.

Agriculturists over the country, besides government officials and agricultural college and experiment station people have been watching with an eagle eye the progress that has been made for the coming exposition and interest is now at the very highest tension.

Farm publications throughout the world are devoting much space to the enterprise, which has for its motto: "Betterment of Agriculture" and with this most excellent and unlimited publicity it is bringing enthusiastic inquiries with each mail, seeking information.

As only educational features are considered, the big National show will be of the greatest possible advantage to the farmers and they highly appreciate the fact that it is to be kept free from any alliances which would be interested for profit alone.

STATES' RIGHTS GETS A BACKSET

That Wing of the Conservationists in Full Retreat.

THEY GOT IT ON ALL SIDES

First Staggered by Vigorous Assaults of Theodore Roosevelt; Then Harried by Organization of Committee on Resolutions, They Were Put Utterly to Rout When Senator Beveridge Tilted His Lance Against Them.

St. Paul, Sept. 8.—The state rights forces in the conservation congress are in full retreat.

Staggered by the vigorous assault of Theodore Roosevelt and defeated Tuesday evening in the organization of the committee on resolutions, the rout was complete yesterday, and to Senator Beveridge of Indiana belongs the credit.

"The United States is. The American people are a nation—not forty-six nations. In war we fight under one flag for our common safety; in peace let us strive under one flag for our common welfare." This was the keynote of the Indiana senator's speech.

In the most brilliant and fiery address yet delivered before the congress, Mr. Beveridge drove his lance full against the so-called "western idea" of conservation. In it he paid a glowing tribute to Gifford Pinchot, starting a demonstration at the auditorium for the deposed chief forester which rivalled the one in honor of Roosevelt Tuesday and plainly showed that the friends of Mr. Pinchot are in control of the congress. If Monday was President Taft's day at the congress and Tuesday the day of Roosevelt, Wednesday was surely Gifford Pinchot's day. And the fact that Mr. Beveridge was the chief orator did not detract from the honors paid the leading spirit in the conservation movement.

Overshadowed on previous days by the two most distinguished men in the country, Mr. Pinchot had not been in the limelight before; in fact, he had not taken an active part in the sessions. But Wednesday it was different. Mr. Pinchot was not on the program, but he continually hovered behind the scenes consulting with President B. N. Baker, and Secretary Thos. R. Shipp, directing and advising. And at the close of Senator Beveridge's speech so loud and insistent were the calls for Mr. Pinchot that he stepped to the front and made a few impromptu remarks. An ovation greeted him.

Many of the delegates from the mountain and Pacific coast states who fostered the states' rights idea, had already gone home. Before the states' rights people got away some of the western governors were talking of calling another conservation congress in the west at which, as they say, they will have an opportunity for free speech. The open charge that the states' rights people were here as the agents and tools of the corporations that are seeking to obtain possession of the water power of this country was too much for the westerners. They felt they had been insulted and maligned and so they decided to get out. Of course, the fight is not over. This conservation congress does not make laws. At the next session of congress the bill introduced by Senator Smoot of Utah, turning the water power sites over to the states, will come up for action. It has many supporters in congress, and it is by no means certain that it can be defeated.

James J. Hill in an address before the conservation congress claimed the credit for first pointing out to Americans the danger of soil spoliation, and declared that conservation itself must be conserved.

INDIANA POLITICS

[Special Correspondence.]

Indianapolis, Sept. 8.—The Democratic managers have shifted front again. Once more it is John W. Kern to the rear. The keynote speech opening the Democratic campaign in Indiana is to be taken out of the mouth of John W. Kern, senatorial "endorsee," and is to be put into the mouth of Governor Marshall. The opening gun will be fired on state issues. Then will come Senator Shively on national questions. Mr. Kern possibly will be permitted to impersonate the political graphophone, reproducing the words of other men.

The natural thing, and the expected thing was a Kern keynote. Kern is the campaign keystone,—the center of the arch. Democratic managers expected to put Mr. Kern forward to make the campaign opener. The plans were made. Who objected? Some say Senator Shively bucked. Some assert that Steve Fleming and John E. Lamb made demands on behalf of the Democratic governor. It is likely there was a little Shively hate and a little Marshall stubbornness in the deal. Anyway, Mr. Kern's speech, prepared in Michigan with great care during many days of retirement and painful thought, is mostly waste.

There is a story to the effect that Mr. Kern prepared a speech demanding immediate revision on a tariff-for-revenue-only basis, said revision to be made by the enemies of the protective principle. It is said that Senator Shively refused to permit the speech to be made. The Democratic state platform, being a straddle to catch votes, evades the tariff issue. The tariff straddle was the work of Senator Shively, who desires to make the campaign against the tariff commission idea, and for a return to the era of low commodity prices and low wages. Kern, urged by Governor Marshall, has renewed the cry of 1892 for a Democratic attack on protection. In this John E. Lamb agrees with Marshall and Kern and W. J. Bryan adds his voice. But it appears Senator Shively may have his way. So the free trade keynote of Kern is in pickle. In its place is to be a Marshall speech on state issues, strictly. Whatever Governor Marshall may say of national questions or of free trade, which he favors, will be thrown in by him without the consent of the bosses.

By confining Governor Marshall to state issues, by turning over to Senator Shively and his friends the discussion of national questions, and by enforcing silence on John W. Kern, so far as possible, until his masters have given him his cue, it is hoped by Democratic managers that the issues may be handled to suit them. Mr. Kern is to keynote, if at all, in the country outside Indianapolis. There is no desire on the part of Democratic managers to give Mr. Kern's words wider publicity than is accorded to Senator Shively. The Shively bitterness against Kern appears at every turn of the road.

The pitiable helplessness of Democratic managers in the absence of Thomas Taggart from the state has been shown in strong relief in the last few days. Starting with a display of inefficiency and heaviness which put off the appointment of an election commissioner for the Democratic party until far too late, things have gone from bad to worse. Bernard Korbly was chosen to be election commissioner. He refused to serve on the ground that his appointment had been so long delayed as to put him in a position of responsibility without giving him time to make good. The refusal of Korbly made a vacancy which Chairman Stokes Jackson was called on to fill. He has been unable or unwilling to take the responsibility on his own account.

At this time of year under former management, the work of preparing for the state election was half done. This year the whole task is yet to be performed. It is a large and important work. It involves the printing of hundreds of thousands of ballots, sheets of various sorts, and the preparation of supplies for thousands of voting precincts. The delay caused by the Democratic state committee's backward conduct is a source of worry. The Democratic governor gave it out flatly, Wednesday, that the commission would meet this morning, whether the Democratic state chairman had picked a commissioner or not.

The fact that Thomas Taggart, premier boss of the Democratic state machine was not within call, and that he could not be reached by wire, may account for the delay in naming an election commissioner to fill the vacancy caused by Bernard Korbly's resignation. Indiana again waits on Taggart. Assuredly Stokes Jackson could not be expected to take the initiative in a matter involving patronage. It is one of the chief characteristics of Taggart's benevolent bossism that in matters of patronage the subordinate state chairman has no say as to where the plum shall drop. One can readily see how necessary it was to get in touch with Thomas Taggart before awarding a prize. Just as in the nomination for superintendent of public instruction, Mr. Taggart must have the final word.

About the Time When the School Bell Rings

Prof. J. H. Scholl.

Miss Edith Weaver and C. Raymond Bailey of Bentonville and Ralph Lord of Mays, will enter the senior class of the high school this year.

Miss Ida Ludlow of Glenwood was in the city today making arrangements for her work here the coming school year.

Miss Helen U. McNitt of Logansport arrived this afternoon to take up another year's work in the high school.

Willard Cook has made arrangements to enter Wabash college this year.

Plans are being completed whereby manual training and sewing will be introduced into the 8B grade this year. The beginning will be made in this line of work this year, and the plans contemplate an extension of the work into all of the seventh and eighth grades and in the first year of the high school next year. The work along these lines will begin sometime during the second week of school, as the equipment is not all secured yet.

In the list of school supplies published yesterday, "a box of water colors" was specified for each grade above the first. Pupils need not purchase new boxes each year, but can buy cakes of water colors and brushes to replace when needed. A water color box should last four or five years and the kinds of brushes furnished with boxes should last two or more years if well cared for. Water pans need not be purchased often as these will last several years. Pupils should compare their list of supplies with those published and purchase new only those things necessary.

A course in Language for the first three school years will be published this week in these columns.

LANGUAGE WORK—FIRST YEAR

Oral Composition.

In general the oral work of the child in this grade should be in complete sentences.

Conversation about familiar objects—animals, toys, articles in common use at home or in school.

Conversations about actions—narration of personal experiences; description of games, play, and construction work.

Nursery rhymes and finger plays. Songs, poems and stories appropriate to the season and occasion.

Retelling of fables and fairy stories presented orally by the teacher. Whenever the stories permit, call attention to their parts and have them retold in parts, for this is an excellent preparation for the planning and paragraphing in later grades.

Let the class daily hear and recite some poem or poems.

Reading lessons, nature study lessons, and holiday celebrations will furnish material for oral work.

Have frequent simple dramatizations.

Let the class study pictures; describing the picture and naming it; telling the story that the picture tells.

Written Composition.

No written composition for the B. class.

In the A class simple written composition may be begun in two ways. First write titles under pictures drawn at the board and at the seat. Second, have the pupils compose orally simple sentences connected with some story told. These sentences may be written on the board by the teacher and then copied by the pupils.

Language and Grammar.

The chief means of teaching children correct language forms are the language of the teacher, the story and the poem. Separate lessons for impressing correct language forms are neither necessary or desirable.

Give practice in using words in a series without using too many and-or-ors.

Show that every sentence must begin with a capital letter.

Teach very simple uses of period, interrogation mark and apostrophe in connection with sentences used in written composition.

Train in correct use: I, me, am, is, are, was, were, has, have, has been, have been, a, an.

By the close of the year the pupil should show some definite growth in the use of correct language. Work for results, expect results, get and see your results.

Read chapters 3 and 4 of Chubb's "The Teaching of English."

Read chapters 1 to 3 of McMurry's "Special Method in Primary Reading."

Read Sara Cone Bryant's "How to Tell Stories to Children."

THE "WORK" EXPLAINED.

Advance to the inner door and give three raps, says an exchange. The devil will attend to the alarm. You will give your name, postoffice address and number of years you owe for the paper. You will be admitted into the sanctum and will advance to the center of the room, where you will address the editor with the following counter-sign: Hold the right hand about two feet from the body with the thumb and fingers clasping a $10 bill, which you will drop into the editor's hand saying: "Were you waiting for me?" The editor will grasp your hand and the bill, pressing it, and will say: "You bet."

Kissing Bug Comes Back

If you see a man or woman going around the streets with a lump decorating one of their lips there is no use asking any questions. The answer is—the kissing bug. In fact it seems that the kissing bug has again come back and is now in our midst doing damage.

In the last few weeks quite a number of people have complained of being bitten on the lip, which has caused it to swell and sting and scratch until the owner of the aforesaid lip wanted to tear it off. After several of the victims had compared notes they reached the opinion that the kissing bug had again got busy after a long vacation, hence it has been decided as advisable to issue a warning to the public to beware of the kissing bug.

It was only a few years ago that the kissing bug appeared all over the country in large numbers and created all kinds of havoc with the sweet rosy lips of the fair maid as well as the wrinkled ones of the old maids and the tobacco flavored ones of the men. Kissing bugs are no respecters of persons or conditions, and when they decide on a job they do it pretty thoroughly, regardless of who is the owner of the lips.

So far there has not been many cases reported in the city, but if the kissing bug is really at work it would be well to be on guard and keep a sharp lookout for the pesky critter.

Boom Growth Not Best

Noting that a boom growth is not always the best growth, the South Bend Times says:

"If any persons are disposed to be envious of the growth of boom towns, as shown by the census, let them go to the suburbs of some of the 'cities' which grew like mushrooms not many years ago in the gas belt of Indiana. They there behold whole rows of tumble down houses once the habitation of workmen attracted thither, in various stages of decay and dilapidation. Healthy growth is always moderate and steady and thereby makes permanent accretions."

Mrs. Jacob Wilmert, Lincoln, Ill., found her way back to perfect health. She writes: "I suffered with kidney trouble and backache and my appetite was very poor at times. A few weeks ago I got Foley Kidney Pills and gave them a fair trial. They gave me great relief so continued till now I am again in perfect health." For sale by F. B. Johnson & Co.

DANDRUFF AND ITCHING SCALP YIELDS TO THIS TREATMENT

Why experiment trying to drive the dandruff germ from underneath the skin with greasy lotions or fancy hairdressing when F. E. Wolcott's Drug Store will guarantee ZEMO and ZEMO soap to entirely rid the scalp of the germ life that causes the trouble.

ZEMO and ZEMO soap can be obtained in any city or town in America and are recognized the best and most economical treatment for all affections of the skin or scalp whether on infant or grown person. One shampoo with ZEMO soap and application of ZEMO will stop itching and cleanse the scalp of dandruff and scurf.

We invite you to try ZEMO and ZEMO soap and if not entirely satisfied we will refund your money.

Does the Indiana voter believe it is the part of wisdom or common sense to turn the State over to the Democratic party as it is now controlled? Is there anything in the record of Thomas Taggart to encourage such a course? What has Mr. Taggart done that he should be entrusted with public control? What, in truth, did he ever do that entitled him to control the Democratic organization?

The Seymour Democrat asserts that it will take a lot of money to defeat the Democrats in Indiana this year. Still, there is strength in votes, also. And if the party has money and yet not get the votes, how shall that party be saved? The Democrat's broad hint that the opposition is to be plentifully supplied with coin is noted. But the suggestion causes no uneasiness. Indiana voters are thinking men. They are more likely to swat the boodler than to support him in his boodling.

R. J. Aley has quit the Democratic State ticket as candidate for superintendent of public instruction in the middle of the campaign. He was in disfavor with Tom Taggart and his henchmen and he knew he was to be given the ax by the Taggart bunch in the election—so he just got busy, hunted himself up a nice little $5,000 job and quit 'em. Now it is rumored that there are other candidates on the Democratic State ticket who will follow Mr. Aley's lead and get off the ticket. Nothing could better show the forlorn hope of Democracy—at least decent Democracy—than this tearing up—this swapping horses in the middle of the stream.—Columbia City Commercial.

Not Rush's Choice.

It is very evident that Dennis O'Neil is not the choice of Rush county Democrats as candidate for prosecuting attorney of the district. The five hundred and twenty-six ballots cast in the convention yesterday stand as mute evidence that they were not in favor of his candidacy. Even though he was heartily endorsed by the Rush county Democrats in convention here, the delegates failed to support him just as soon as another candidate, other than Carson, appeared on the horizon. The thirteen votes from here were cast for O'Neil until the 150th ballot, when John D. Megee allowed his name to be introduced. Then the whole local delegation switched, and stayed with Megee until the end, not even making it unanimous when Cheney's support was all thrown to O'Neil, making his election possible. The manner in which the thirteen delegates from here "handed it" to O'Neil has been the chief political gossip here today. There is no doubt but what Rush county Democracy did not want O'Neil or they would have voted for him. He was nominated by Shelby county.

The manner in which O'Neil gained his nomination has been the cause for a great deal of comment. The fact that John C. Cheney, present prosecutor, should throw all of his support to O'Neil, in preference to any other candidate, in the light of the assertions of certain local Democratic politicians is hard to explain. It is said that Cheney has never looked upon the candidacy of O'Neil in a favorable light and that he should swing his whole support to the Rush county man is almost without a sequel.

EDITORIALETTES.

It might be well to remember that buying too much life insurance is invariably fatal. The victims generally go the poison route.

There have been many charges made against motorcycles, but the latest has just come to life. A young woman over at Muncie, riding tandem fashion, was severely burned when her skirts caught fire from the engine.

Local Democrats say they are not sore. Somebody surely has some sore spots because a local man was defeated.

The New Castle Courier says: that no matter how you try and want-to, Taft can't get as big headlines as Teddy because he's not built that way.

There's only one way to avoid the kissing bug, never meet it in the dark. It is the only way to avoid all other animals with the same propensities.

Some people are sure to charge the increased tax rate, if there is any, to county option. Take a look at Richmond.

It seems that the man who would have no place in the heart for morality, should be given no consideration at the polls.

It's perfectly all right to help a man along, after he has been down and out, if he tries to come up. Emphasis on the conditional phrase.

What if Jim Jefferies is not interested in the "hobble" skirt, some Rushville young women are.

Settles Dust Question

One of the great problems that confronts the public today in the east of keeping up roads is about to be solved by the discovery of a new process that reads like a dream and one of the impossible things. Good roads are one of the ambitions of the people and millions of dollars are annually expended to protect them and keep down the dust. It now costs the people of Rush county nearly twenty-five thousands dollars a year to keep the gravel roads in repair, and this does not take into consideration the earth roads or the streets in the towns and cities. In towns we sprinkle the streets with water to settle the dust, but this is not satisfactory for the reason that water evaporates and dries nearly as fast as it is sprinkled, and then the dust comes flying over the town from the streets that are not sprinkled.

By accident, a new discovery has been made to solve the dust problem, and also save and protect the roads at a modern expense. Some tennis players at Billings, Montana, had a great deal of trouble with dust in their tennis court and they had sprinkled it with water, oiled it and used other materials to settle the dust, but all failed to do the work. The tennis players were looking for something cheap, so they got a syrup which is a refuse in the manufacture of granulated sugar from sugar beets and mixed it with salt, and sprinkling it on their tennis court they found that it did not only settle the dust, but it protected the ground. Then they experimented with it on the roads and they found that it settled the dust and preserved the roads at a nominal cost and they are now recommending its use on all public roads in that State. Water does not accomplish the purpose and oil is too expensive and this syrup being very cheap and there is an abundance of it, it is possible that within the next few years we will be sprink-

What Our Neighbors Are Talking About

COULD NOT PROSECUTE.

(New Castle Courier.)

The case of the city in the suit against Carl C. Barley, proprietor of the Star theater, for damages and to revoke his license, "blew up" yesterday morning and at the request of Chief of Police Burr, who instituted the proceedings, the case was dismissed by the court.

The action of Chief Burr was taken after the testimony of Patrolman Ives and Mogul had been introduced and when it was seen that the city could not make a case against Mr. Barley.

Barley was arrested last week on a charge of violating the city ordinance regarding the exhibition of immoral or degrading pictures. The charge against him grew out of the exhibition of pictures of the training camps of Johnson and Jeffries and a view of the fighters after the knock-out at Reno last July.

CHAPTER VII.
AFFAIRS OF STATE.

THE grand duke stamped back and forth with a rumble as of distant thunder. They would play with him, eh? Well, they had loosed the lion this time. He had sent his valet to summon her highness and Herbeck.

"And tell them to put everything else aside."

He kneaded the note in his hand powerfully. It was anonymous, but it spoke clearly, like truth. The sender remained undiscoverable.

Had he not opposed it for months? And now, having surrendered against his better judgment, this gratuitous affront was offered him. It was damnable. He smote the offending note. War! Nothing less. He was prepared for it. Twenty thousand troops were now in the valley, and there were 20,000 reserves.

Herbeck came calmly in. "Why the devil couldn't you have left well enough alone? Read this!" The duke flung the note down on his desk.

Herbeck picked it up and worked out the creases.

"Well?" The query tingled with rage.

The answer on the chancellor's lips was not uttered. Hildegard came in. He embraced her and kissed her brow.

"Read," said the duke to her.

She slipped from her father's arms and looked with pity at the chancellor.

"What do you think of this, Hildegard?"

"Why, father, I think it is the very best thing in the world," dryly.

"An insult like this?" The duke grew rigid. "You accept it calmly in this fashion?"

"Shall I weep and tear my hair over a boy I have never seen? No, thank you. I was about to make known to you this very evening that I had reconsidered the offer. I shall never marry his majesty."

Herbeck explained the situation.

"Your highness, the regent is really not to blame, for his majesty had given him free rein in the matter, and his royal highness, working as I have been for the best interests of the two countries, never dreamed that the king would rebel. The king has been generous enough to leave the publicity in our hands—that is to say, he agrees to accept the humiliation of being rejected by her serene highness."

"That is very generous of him!" said the duke sarcastically. "Send for Ducwitz."

"Ducwitz, your highness?" cried the chancellor, chilled.

"Immediately!"

"Your highness, if you call Ducwitz I shall surrender my portfolio." The chancellor was firm.

"No. So. There are others to take up your work."

Hildegard flew to the duke's side and snatched at his sleeve.

"Father, you are mad!"

"At least I am master in Ehrenstein. Herbeck will have the kindness to summon General Ducwitz."

"Your highness," replied Herbeck, "I have worked long and faithfully in your service. I can not recall that I ever asked one personal favor. But I do so now. Do not send for Ducwitz tonight. See him in the morning. This is no time for haste. You will throw the army into Jugendheit, and th will follow a bloody war."

"I will have my revenge!" stubbornly.

"Father, listen to me. I am the affronted person. I—I alone—have the right to say what shall be done in the matter. And I say to you if you do these cruel things, dismiss his excellency and bring war and death to Ehrenstein, I will never forgive you—never, never! You are wrong, wrong, and I, your daughter, tell you so frankly. Leave it to me. There will be neither war nor humiliation."

"My dear child," he said, "I have suffered too much at the hands of Jugendheit. It was my daughter the first time; it is my honor now," proudly.

"Will it balance war and devastation?" the girl asked quietly. "Is it not pride rather than honor? The prince regent made a pardonable blunder. Do not you, my father, make an unpardonable one?"

"A Portia to the judgment," said the chancellor, his eye kindling. "Let it all rest upon my shoulders. I alone am to blame. It was I who first suggested the alliance."

Notwithstanding that he was generally hasty, the duke was a just man. He offered his hand, with half a smile.

"You are bidding me farewell, your highness?" said Herbeck.

"No, count. I would not let you go for half my duchy. Even a duke may be a fool sometimes."

Herbeck laid his cold hand upon the duke's. Then he went over to her highness and kissed her hand gratefully, for it was truly at her feet the wreath of victory lay.

"Highness," he said softly, "you shall marry when you will."

"And where?"

"I would that I could make it so. But there is a penalty for being placed so high. We cannot change this unwritten law."

"Heaven did not write it," she replied.

"No, my daughter," said the duke. "Man is at the bottom of all the kinks and twists in this short life, not heaven. But Herbeck is right. You shall marry when you will."

The knock of the valet was again heard.

"Your highness, there is a young woman outside, a peasant, who desires to speak to her serene highness."

"What! She enters the palace without any more trouble than this?"

"By my orders, father," said Hildegard, who gathered that this privileged visitor must be Gretchen of the Krumerweg. "Admit her."

Gretchen was ushered in. Her throat was a little full as she recognized the three most important persons in the grand duchy.

"The little goose girl!" the duke said half audibly.

"Yes, highness." Gretchen's face was serious, and her eyes were mournful. She carried an envelope in her hand tightly.

"Come to me, Gretchen," said the princess. "What is it?"

"She is dead, highness, and I found this letter under her pillow."

Herbeck took the envelope.

"Dead?" Hildegard's eyes filled.

"Who is dead?" demanded the duke.

"Emma Schultz, father. Oh, I know you will forgive me for this deception. She has been in Dreisberg for a month dying, and I have often stolen out to see her." She let her tears fall unrestrained.

The duke stared at the rug. Presently he said: "Let her be buried in consecrated ground. Wrong or right, that chapter is closed, my child. What is in the letter, Herbeck?"

Herbeck was a strong man. He was always far removed from tears, but there was a mist over the usual clarity of his vision. He ripped down the flap. It was only a simple note to her serene highness begging her to give the inclosed banknotes to one Gretchen, who lived in the Krumerweg. The notes represented a thousand crowns.

"Take them, little goose girl," said the duke. "Your ship has come in. This will be your dowry."

An icy shiver ran up and down Gretchen's spine, a shiver of wonder, delight, terror. A thousand crowns! A fortune!

"And I shall add to it another thousand," said Hildegard. "Give them to me, father."

In all this fortune amounted to little more than $400, but to Gretchen, frugal and thrifty, to whom a single crown was a large sum, to her it represented wealth. She was now the richest girl in the lower town. Dreams of kaleidoscopic variety flew through her head. Tears sprang into her eyes. She had the power to do no more than weep.

The duke was the first to relieve the awkwardness of the moment.

"Count, has it not occurred to you that we stand in the presence of two very beautiful young women?"

Herbeck scrutinized Gretchen with care. Then he compared her with the princess. The duke was right. And the thing which struck him with most force was that, while each possessed a beauty individual to herself, it was not opposite, but strangely alike.

When the duke was alone he slowly passed on to his secretary and opened a drawer. He laid a small bundle on the desk and untied the string. One by one he ranged the articles—two little yellow shoes, a little cloak trimmed

NO MORE GRAY HAIR

It is easier to preserve the color of the hair than to restore it, although it is possible to do both. Our grandmothers understood the secret. They made and used a "sage tea," and their dark, glossy hair long after middle life was due to this fact. Our mothers have gray hairs before they are fifty, but they are beginning to appreciate the wisdom of our grandmothers in using "sage tea" for their hair, and are fast following suit. The present generation has the advantage of the past in that it can get a ready to use preparation called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur. As a scalp tonic and color restorer, this preparation is vastly superior to the ordinary "sage tea" made by our grandmothers, and it can be bought for 50 cents and $1 a bottle at almost any first-class drug store, or will be sent direct by the Wyeth Chemical Company, 74 Cortlandt St., New York City, upon receipt of price.

Hermann Breunner lived in the granite lodge just within the eastern gates of the royal gardens. He was a widower and shared the ample lodge with the undergardeners and their families. He was a man of brooding moods, and there was no laughter in his withered heart. He adjusted his heavy spectacles and held the note slantingly toward the candle. A note or a letter was a singular event in Hermann's life. This note, left by the porter of the Grand hotel, moved him with surprise. It requested that he present himself at 8 o'clock at the office of the hotel and ask to be directed to the room of Hans Grumbach, whoever he might be.

He decided to go. Certainly this man Grumbach did not urge him without some definite purpose. The concierge at the hotel, who knew Hermann, conducted him to room 10 on the entresole. Hermann knocked. A

MEN OLD AT 35

One Million Baldheads Who Thought Dandruff Wasn't Dangerous.

In the United States and Canada today there are nearly a million men who at 35 can be put in the bald-headed class.

When these men had thick vigorous hair, dandruff made its appearance.

That was the time to attack the enemy of mankind—the persistent little devil called dandruff microbe, or germ that burrows deep down into the hair root and saps it of the vitality that is so essential to the hair.

Young men or any man, for that matter, beware of the dandruff germ; it is not a theory, but an actual condition that confronts you. That dandruff is caused by a germ, is proven beyond question. That this germ destroys to hair root is today a matter of common knowledge.

Johnson's Drug Store has the remedy that kills the dandruff germs and they guarantee it to eradicate dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks, or money back. It is called PARISIAN SAGE, and can be obtained at druggists in every town in America—ask Johnson's Drug Store for it. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every bottle of Parisian Sage.

voice bade him enter.

"You wished to see me?"

"Yes," offering a chair.

"You are Hermann Breunner," began Grumbach, "and you once had a brother named Hans."

Hermann grew rigid in his chair. "I have no brother."

"You did have."

Hermann's head dropped. "My God, yes, I did have a brother, but he was a scoundrel."

"Perhaps he was a scoundrel. He is—dead?" softly.

"God's will be done!" But Hermann's face turned lighter.

"As a boy he loved you."

"And did I not love him?" said Hermann fiercely. "Did I not worship that boy, who was more like a son to me than a brother?"

"I knew your brother. I knew him well. He was not a scoundrel, only weak. He went to America and became successful in business. He fought with the north in the war. He was not a coward. He did his fighting bravely and honorably. He died facing the enemy, and his last words were of you. He begged your forgiveness. He implored that you forget that black moment. He was young, he said, and they offered him a thousand crowns. In a moment of despair he fell."

"Despair! Did he confess?"

"Yes."

"Did he tell you to whom he sold his honor?"

"That he never knew. A gypsy from the hills came to him, so he said."

"From Jugendheit?"

"I say that he knew nothing. He believed that the gypsy wanted her highness to hold for ransom. Hans spoke of a girl called Tekla."

"Tekla? Ah, yes; Hans was in love with that doll face."

"Hans followed the band of gypsies into the mountains. The real horror of his act did not come home to him till then. Ah, the remorse! But it was too late. They dressed the little one in rags. But when I ran away from them I took her little shoes and cloak and locket."

Hermann was on his feet. Grumbach's eyes were as bright and glowing as coals.

Hermann leaned forward.

"Is it you, Hans, and I did not know you?"

"It is I, brother."

"My God!" Hermann sank down weakly.

To be Continued.

Feet So Sore Couldn't Walk Down Stairs—

TIZ Cured Her Quick.

If you have sore feet, tired feet, sweaty feet, lame feet, tender feet, smelly feet, corns, calluses or bunions, read what happened to Mrs. Crockett of Jeffersonville. TIZ DID IT. Mr. Crockett says: "After the second treatment she walked downstairs one foot at a time. She has not been able to walk downstairs before in past five years, except by stepping down on each step with one foot at a time. This is remarkable. Send five more boxes." No matter what ails your feet or what under heaven you have used without getting relief, just use TIZ. It cures sore feet to stay cured. It's the only foot remedy ever made which acts on the principle of drawing out all the poisonous excretions which cause sore feet. Powders and other remedies merely clog up the pores. TIZ cleans them out and keeps them clean. You will feel better the first time it's used. Use it a week and you can forget you ever had sore feet. There is nothing on earth that can compare with it. TIZ is for sale at all druggists, 50c per box, or direct, if you wish, from Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill.

J. J. HILL.

One of Prominent Speakers at Conservation Congress.

WISCONSIN SURELY LIKES LAFOLLETTE

Full Returns From Tuesday's Primaries Indicate This.

Milwaukee, Sept. 8.—In Tuesday's primaries the voters selected La Follette candidates for legislative nominations to such an extent that if the Republican party is victorious in November, there will be no question as to the return of Mr. La Follette.

Francis E. McGovern, with the La Follette support pretty well centered behind him, carried the state for the Republican nomination for governor with a plurality which will run about 25,000. The entire La Follette state ticket is nominated. Even Frank Tucker, who killed himself last week at Oshkosh, received a plurality vote for the Republican nomination for attorney general.

The Republican candidates for congress were all re-nominated save W. H. Stafford. His support of Speaker Cannon in the last congress cost him his position. The platform convention will be controlled by the progressives, and a distinctly La Follette platform will be adopted.

The Democratic state ticket will get on the official ballot. That now seems assured by the returns, which show that 20 per cent of the normal vote was polled. As regards county and legislative tickets, the situation is different. In some counties the Democrats will get on the ballot, and in others they will not.

OVERWHELMING

Was the Defeat of Senator Burrows in Michigan.

Detroit, Sept. 8.—The battle for the Republican nominations which has been raging for more than a year, has ended by the nomination of Charles E. Townsend for United States senator by more than 25,000 votes over Senator J. C. Burrows, who has been a conspicuous figure in national politics for thirty-three years, and Charles E. S. Osborn is the winner for governor by approximately the same figures.

The showing of Senator Burrows was a great disappointment to his friends. Mr. Townsend overwhelmed the senator in practically every section of the state. Even the upper peninsula, which but a month ago was apparently solid for the senator, turned and gave Townsend a majority.

Lawton W. Hemans of Mason was nominated (opposed) for governor on the Democratic ticket, and John T. Winship of Saginaw received the nomination for United States senator on the Democratic ticket.

INJURED IN COSTLY BLAZE.

Indianapolis, Sept. 8.—Two firemen and a night watchman were seriously injured by the flames in a disastrous fire last night at the plant of the Bishop & Babcock Opal Onyx Iceless Soda Fountain company. The plant was destroyed at a loss approximating $300,000.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

Cloudbursts in north central Texas have caused more than a dozen deaths by drowning.

A hurricane of unusual violence swept over the island of Porto Rico, causing some loss of life and heavy damage to property.

The Pennsylvania railroad tunnel under East river, joining Manhattan and Long Islands, has been formally opened for passenger traffic.

The Italian police are still without a clue to the men who murdered Giuseppe Rugolino, a forest guard, and his wife and six children at Pellarò.

The divorced wife of Clarence Stanley, son of a rich farmer, killed his second wife at Campbell, Mo., because she demanded possession of the children by the first marriage.

Two persons were killed, fifteen were injured seriously, five perhaps fatally, and twenty others suffered minor injuries in the wreck of a train on the Great Northern at Coram, Mont.

Emphatic denial is made by Senator Elkins of rumors that he is preparing to go to Paris, or that his daughter Katherine will marry the Duke of the Abruzzi in February or at any other time.

PARTY DIVIDES THE COMMITTEE

Resolution Adverse to Ballinger
May Be Reversed.

NO QUORUM, SAYS CHAIRMAN

In the Absence of Full Committee, the Minority Members and Representative Madison Pass Resolution Recommending Secretary Ballinger's Dismissal, but Nelson Rules No Quorum and Later Vote Will Be Taken.

St. Paul, Sept. 8.—Gifford Pinchot was in his room at the St. Paul hotel with his teeth in a juicy pear when the first report that the investigating committee had decided against Ballinger was told him. He withdrew his teeth quietly, looked intently at the reporter who bore the news and asked for all particulars regarding the matter of the committee's decision. Beyond saying "That is very interesting news," he had absolutely nothing to say. He said he would make no statement. In the room with him at the time were Senator Beveridge, Mr. Pinchot's brother, and Thomas R. Shipp of Indianapolis, executive secretary of the conservation congress.

The Ballinger-Pinchot congressional investigating committee adopted a resolution at its session at the West hotel, Minneapolis, that Secretary Ballinger be removed from his office. Two Republican members of the committee, McCall of Massachusetts and Senator Sutherland of Utah, left the committee room before the committee adjourned and went to another room in the hotel, evidently for a conference. The remaining members of the committee, including all the Democratic members, and Representative Madison of Kansas, who is generally credited with having anti-Ballinger inclinations, told the waiting reporters that the secretary of the committee would prepare a statement later. None of the members would say a word about their action.

The committee declared in their opinion Ballinger had been unfaithful to his duty, and recommended that he be removed from office.

The resolution was offered by Senator Fletcher of Florida, and was later modified by a resolution offered by Mr. Madison of Kansas, which was in turn amended by one by Representative James of Kentucky, Democrat. The reason given by McCall and Sutherland for refusing to vote upon the resolution was that the other members of the committee had not had a chance to vote. When called on to vote on the resolution, Senator Nelson voted "present." The resolution asking for the removal of Ballinger was passed by a vote of Senators Fletcher and Purcell, and James, Graham and Madison, representatives. The four first named are Democrats and Madison is a progressive Republican. The Democratic members replied that they had been months considering the evidence, that a quorum was present and had a right to transact business. Senator Nelson, the chairman of the committee, voted "present" himself, and then made the ruling that no quorum was present. The committee then took a recess until Friday at 10 o'clock, at which time reports in keeping with the resolution of Fletcher and the amendment thereto offered by Mr. Madison will be submitted.

As soon as Senator Sutherland and Representative McCall found that the issue was to be pressed to a conclusion they left the committee and did not return, on the ground that it was unfair to the absent members and to Ballinger to act without a full committee. After a short conference they went to the long-distance phone and asked for several New York state points, probably trying to get in touch with Senator Root, who landed in New York Tuesday night after a trip to Europe. It is believed that they will be able to get him here by Friday morning. Representative Denby of Michigan and Representative Olmsted of Pennsylvania are now on their way here, and both will arrive before Friday morning. Senator Flint of California is understood to be traveling in Europe and can't be reached. If all the members of the majority except Madison stand together it will make the committee a tie. It is pointed out that the present action of the committee will in no manner prevent the making of a report of a different tenor approved by the majority. It is, therefore, pretty certain that Senator Nelson and his followers in the committee will make a special report as they think fit before the matter is officially presented to congress.

The Beverly View of It.

Beverly, Mass., Sept. 8.—Mr. Taft declined to comment on the vote of the Democratic members and insurgent Madison against Secretary Ballinger. The action of the Democratic-insurgent committee members is regarded chiefly as an effort to draw out the majority report of the committee before the fall elections. The majority report, it is said, will sustain Secretary Ballinger. The action of the Democrats and insurgent Madison was therefore chiefly political. They apparently wanted to get themselves on record before the election and also to force out the majority report.

THE DEUTSCHER CLUB THE COLONEL'S HOSTS

And It Was There He Had a Right Good Time.

Milwaukee, Sept. 8.—When he arrived here Mr. Roosevelt was told of the results of the primaries in which La Follette was again endorsed for the senatorship. He appeared to be pleased and said that he does not believe that La Follette can be defeated in the legislature. "An effort to beat him in the legislature," he said, "would be from every point of view an outrage and would be violation of good faith."

The colonel did not discuss any other politics. He was more anxious to go around town and see the city. He asked that he be taken to the Deutscher club, where he had been once before and had the time of his life. This club of Milwaukee Teutons is one of the most famous in the country. The colonel had counted on a German party, and they gave him one that was entirely satisfactory. There was plenty to go around and each was in good cheer. Mr. Roosevelt joined in the old familiar "Hoch Soll Er Leben," and he actually whooped with delight. He recalled that "while in Germany on my recent European tour I told the kaiser that I expected to visit Milwaukee in the near future and I would bear his compliments to the Deutscher club. I take this opportunity to present them."

It was a fine, intimate party, with plenty to eat and drink and the crowd enjoyed it. T. R. hated to break away from the songs and the rest, but he had other engagements. A dinner at the Press club and a speech at the auditorium wound up the day's doings. The colonel said before he left that it was one of the pleasantest days of the trip.

DO YOU USUALLY HAVE THE MONEY AT THE OPPORTUNE TIME?

NOTICE, within the circle of your personal acquaintance and observation, the suggestion-fraught fact that the people who are in the habit of reading ads. usually have money to buy advertised things!

If it is not already true of you, personally, that when you see something you need, advertised at a bargain, you can usually take prompt advantage of the offer, it will become true of you very shortly after you have become a regular reader and answerer of ads. Isn't it worth while?

"IT WAS GREAT" SAY H. S. ALUMNI

Ralph Stiffler then toasted the alumni on "The Co-ed Hero." With sentences that showed a marvelous communion with Webster, he made it very clear that he believed there to be no hero only in fiction. He proved this point by illustrations that reached from the classics down to the popular story of the football hero. Very wittingly he told of experiences that he had known of as college man as Co-ed heroes, alluding to the bet of the fudge with an expert knowledge of climaxes. "I believe the true hero is the man who can go through high school and evade the queens of his class and through college and ward off the smiles of the winsome Co-ed," was one of the speaker's more philosophical statements. He closed with a football sonnet that was written by a dying warrior of the gridiron, which was the greatest laugh-producer of the evening.

John Kiplinger, "99," spoke with much humor on "The It." "Reference can be made to a multitude of things with it," said Mr. Kiplinger. "There has been quite a question in my mind as to what it really is, but I have decided that it is that within a man which gives self-confidence, not to the extent of egotism, but to the extent that he feels that he will succeed in any or everything that he attempts." This idea was Mr. Kiplinger's theme.

Miss Georgie Wyatt, "08," made the hearts of several of the younger alumni jump with her talk on "A High School Romance," and those of the younged alumni, whose hearts did not thump, there minds were fleeced with pleasant recollections of high school cases that they had known. Her toast was a deviation from the other ones of the evening in the fact that it was a personal recalling of romances she had known among other students. The personal allusions did not cut, for they brought to every mind the happiness and freedom of "School Days."

Dr. J. C. Sexton in his pleasing manner closed with a fitting tribute to the teachers of the days gone by. There was not a one of the hearts of "silver grays" that did not grow the least bit emotional at the mention of the early teachers in the school that stands as the beloved alma mater of those, excepting the "In-laws," who were present. He closed the evening with one of his after dinner stories, which aptly illustrated the charitable point, that he wished all would meet their beats coming in rather than going out.

After the toasts were over a business meeting was held in the Sunday school room of the church. The same officers were re-elected; Birney Spradling, president; Roy Harrold, vice-president; Marguerite Neutzenhelzer, secretary; and Helen Black, treasurer. It was decided to hold the banquets in every even year on the third Wednesday of June, so therefore the next banquet will be held on the third Wednesday of June, 1912.

Among the alumni present from a distance were Mrs. Angelina Coleman Williamson of Indianapolis; Mrs. Bernice Webb Jackson, of Anderson; Mrs. Adelia Megee McIntosh of Connersville; Mrs. Leona Vance Schmidt, of Cincinnati; Miss Anna Stearns of Winona; Lawrence Root of Piqua, O.; and Ralph Bankert of Plymouth.

SOCIETY NEWS

New Castle Courier: Willard B. Ward of near Lewisville and Miss Frances Nugen of Dunreith, were the principals in a quiet wedding at the North 12th street home of Rev. Howe yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The couple will reside on the former's farm near Lewisville.

Mr. and Mrs. George Lucas entertained at six o'clock dinner last night Mrs. Ed Wesel and Miss Eva Price of Ft. Wayne.

Miss Ella Marlatt, sister of Mrs. J. H. Scholl, who is well known here on account of her numerous visits in Rushville, was married at her home in Connersville yesterday. The News of that city says of the ceremony:

A happy courtship of some years reached a climax Wednesday morning at ten o'clock, when Miss Ella Marlatt and Fred V. Miller, both of this city, were married at the home of the bride, at Western avenue and Fifth street.

The ceremony, which was performed in the presence of only a few intimate friends and relatives, was quiet and dignified. The parents of both bride and groom, the Rev. A. N. Marlatt and the Rev. Jesse Miller, performed the ring ceremony.

The couple was unattended and stood in the wide doorway between the parlors in front of a huge bank of palms and ferns. The relatives and friends were grouped in the two rooms and Miss Marian Scholl presided at the piano in the hall.

Mr. Miller for some time has held a responsible position with the Rex Buggy company and his bride, after graduating from DePauw University, has been an instructor in the local high school. Both are members and active workers in the First Methodist church.

After a trip of two weeks, down the Ohio river, they will return and will reside in Maplewood.

If any one feature marks this wedding more than the simplicity and the happiness with which it was performed it was that the parents of the bride and groom, both ministers, performed it. Both Rev. Marlatt and Rev. Miller have been active in this community and their presence and part in the ceremony added an unusual touch to the ceremony as they blessed their son and daughter.

Everett C. Hehe and Miss Mary A. Smith were united in marriage at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. James Birchfield of St. Paul, at 7:30 this morning. Rev. James L. Brown tying the nuptial knot, says the Greensburg News.

The groom was formerly a resident of Ripley county, near Milan, but for several years has been employed at St. Paul. He is an upright, honest and industrious young man and is the possessor of forty acres of timber land in Arkansas, a portion of which has been cleared.

The bride is the daughter of George Smith, deceased, and is an affable young lady. They went to Ripley county on a short wedding tour and upon their return will be at home to their friends in St. Paul, where they will reside.

Mrs. Frank Wilson entertained yesterday afternoon in honor of Miss Sallie Houston of Shelbyville, who is the guest of Mrs. George Aultman.

The Misses Katherine McKee and Mayne Mullins and Mrs. Owen McKee were Connersville visitors this afternoon.

AMUSEMENTS

The Vaudet management will offer a big double program tonight with two reels of pictures, "Lake Luzerne" is the topic of an educational film. The scenery, which is taken from Switzerland, is said to be of marvelous beauty. The stereoptic effects obtained are remarkably attractive. "In the Mesh of the Net" tells a dramatic story of the life of an old fisherman. It is highly entertaining, containing several thrilling episodes and a wholly unexpected climax.

"The Attack on the Mill" is the title of the film which will be shown at the Palace theater tonight. It is a war drama and tells a thrilling story of the rebellion. It is replete with startling situations and contains a rare plot. A new song will be sung.

BIG FOUR MEN URGED TO ACT

Are Requested to Help Prevent a Rate Reduction by the Government.

EXPENSES HAVE INCREASED

Ask Employees to Sign Petition Addressed to Commerce Commission and Congressmen.

Employees of the Big Four railroad have been asked by General Manager J. Q. Van Winkle to join in a concentrated movement to bring about increases in freight rates without intimidation or coercion. They asked to sign petitions for the purpose that will be sent to members of the interstate Commerce Commission and of both houses of congress.

The letters read: "To the employees: "This road, and practically all railroads, have recently made an effort to secure increases in freight transportation rates, and in the very near future the question of approval by it of such increases will be the subject of a hearing before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"The management believe that you desire a decision of the question favorable to the railroads; in fact, that you are vitally interested in such determination of it. Our expenses in the recent past have been so greatly increased that unless relief is afforded, conditions will result which would of necessity affect you adversely.

"Within a few days petitions urging upon the Interstate Commerce Commission, also upon your senators and representatives in congress, the necessity for action in the matter favorable to the railroads, will be presented to you and your voluntary signatures are solicited."

WOODS IS FULL OF BIG TURKEYS

Crop Will be Large This Year And Thanksgiving "Feed" Can be Had.

GRASSHOPPERS ARE REASON

Don't want to raise your hopes too high, but it is a fact that turkeys will be more plentiful this fall than they have been for the past several years. The dry season and the large crop of grasshoppers are responsible.

For the past several years turkeys have been so high in price that only those who owned aeroplanes could reach them. Many Rushville people went turkeyless on Thanksgiving and even offered up prayer that they were able to buy yelicken or round steak. But conditions may be different this year if the reports that come in from rural Rush have any significance. A farmer who owns a large flock of turkeys, was in the city today, and stated that his turkeys were doing better than any flock he ever owned.
